The number of qualified applicants admitted to the Practical Nursing Program is contingent upon the number of faculty and space available in the classrooms, nursing laboratories, and clinical sites needed to meet the program's learning outcomes. Currently, up to 30 students per admission cohort are offered for program admission. The 30 students are selected from highest scoring to lowest scoring worksheet totals within the semester of application. Applications are processed twice – first upon published due date of program applications and the second upon grade postings for the semester of application.
